

Introduction

Our speaker today is an acclaimed author and expert in the art and science of leadership and sales. Mike Faber has been leading corporate teams since 1992, and is one of the Rocky Mountain region's most sought-after speakers.

To say Mike has a varied background would be an understatement. He was once named the Woodmen's Sportscaster of the Year and he's a 17-time financial services Chairman's Club honoree. Mike coordinated Red Cross shelters during Hurricane Gilbert in Texas, and was narrowly beaten for first place at the 1989 New York City Marathon. In that race, Mike was edged out by just 19,414 other runners.

Mike's 89 Seconds to Success series of books and card decks have been acclaimed as "indispensable" to leaders and business development experts across North America. He's survived three stock market crashes, two radical career changes, and the loss of a promising career as a hair-style model.

You've seen him on T-V pitching Public Television for more than a quarter-century, please help me welcome today's speaker, Mike Faber
